Longstanding relationships

Big skies. Big thinking.

Who we are ...

'First class service, utterly professional and could have done no more.'

With four offices in the East of England, our solicitors are happy to go wherever is most convenient for you and frequently carry out home visits for those who may have difficulty coming to us.

Our desks are the fields, factories and homes of our clients not just modern offices in high-rise buildings. We understand not only your business but your industry and so have the ability to help you make it flourish.

Since 1934, we have committed ourselves as the trusted advisors to continuous generations of landowners and farming families. As a firm, we are recognised experts in the agricultural sector, providing unrivalled technical knowledge that frequently sets the precedent for others.

... and what we do

At Roythornes, we consider ourselves to be a “one-stop shop” for legal matters, from commercial mergers to leases and wills. We will always be happy to refer your matter to the best person for the job.

Big picture thinkers

In recent years we have received a number of accreditations including Lexcel (Law Society), WIQs (Wills and Inheritance Quality scheme), and CSE (Customer Service Excellence). For the last two years we have been listed as one of the London Stock Exchange’s 1000 Companies to Inspire Britain as a result of our innovation and growth. To achieve such accolades the entire firm must meet certain criteria in client care and quality and communication, which means our clients can assume an excellent standard of service with every instruction.

Our business services take into account the wider implications of any decisions made. By looking at the big picture, we assess how actions taken today might affect a business years down the line.

Trusted advisors

We act for a range of businesses from blue-chip firms to start-ups, as well as family businesses, big and small and charities. Our work with you as an individual can support you through some of life’s major events - from matrimonial breakdowns to life-changing injuries at work. Our teams will always have your best interests in mind and provide you with advice tailored to each situation. We will help you manage the pressure and guide you through the sometimes complex and confusing issues you may have to navigate.

As a firm, we know that building longstanding relationships with clients is the key to providing the high quality of advice on which we have built our reputation over the last 80 years.
