

A training contract with Roythornes

Big skies. Big thinking.

Why Roythornes?

“Established and has a lot of history but is full of modern ambition”- The Lex 100

An obvious question, but if we had to sum it up in a few sentences it would be:

- A positive attitude to training the best people to be the future of our firm
- Interesting and challenging work - from day one you will be part of the team
- A great social life across the firm
- The opportunity to work in one of the most wonderful places in the country – big skies, no traffic jams and a great quality of life

As one of the top 200 firms in the UK (the Lawyer, 2019), we're already successful and continuously growing, but we have ambitious targets and want the best people to help us achieve our challenging goals.

We're looking for trainees with an appetite to learn from and work alongside some of the top people in the country on matters ranging from corporate and commercial to complex individual tax issues.

We may be ranked as a top 200 law firm but our Lex 100 results show we punch well above our weight in areas such as quality of work, living up to expectations, stress levels, vacation schemes, work/life balance and most importantly we were ranked fifth in the country for job satisfaction.

We work with a wide range of clients including high street names, entrepreneurial renewable energy businesses, and large family concerns whom we have helped for generations.

Without exception the trainees we take on are amazed at the variety and quality of work we undertake – it's challenging but it's about as varied and rewarding as you can get.

All trainees have the opportunity to take part in our Agri-academy as well as our new Business Development academy, both provide participants with a specialist skill set in areas which will give them a true advantage in their careers at Roythornes.

“Our reputation as one of the region’s leading law firms depends on recruiting and retaining the industry’s brightest talent”

- Julia Seary, Training Partner
